THE MINT.

THE purchase of the Mint Machinery by the Japanese for $60,000 is the first step towards the satisfactory solution of a difficulty which, it was feared, would prove serious on its being decided to close that establishment. We are unaware of the actual prime cost of the machinery, but the sum obtained would seem to be a tolerably fair valuation, while the Japanese will doubtless congratulate themselves on having obtained it in a somewhat cheaper market than many of their purchases during the last three years. But the silence maintained on the subject by the Colonial Government has somewhat astonished the public, to whom the various steps in the negociations have been perfectly well known from the beginning, and afford another illustration of the absurdity of attempting to preserve a mystery on public subjects. In India and the Straits despatches on a matter of so much general interest would have been placed at the disposal of the local journals, but the rule in Hongkong seems to be "Above all, mystery." We do not deplore this habit of concealment from interested motives, as we should be perfectly contented, did the Government Gazette occasionally enliven its not very exciting pages, by the publication of those documents of which the tenor forms the staple of many an after-dinner d'scussion while their existence is officially ignored. In this respect His Excellency's administration might take a lesson from Singapore, the more so as the Governor ostensibly courts publicity -especially where secrecy is valueless. Leaving, however, the temptation under which we labour to discuss certain unpublished documents, let us return to the Mint, which must yet per-force receive some considerable attention from the taxpaying public. It will be remembered that a large amount of the initial expense was incurred to render the site available, Causeway Bay being, a few years since, somewhat different in shape to its present appearance, now that swamp and salt water have given place to stable, dry land. As a site alone, the Mint compound is of considerable value, and its occupation need not be a matter of very lengthened deliberation. In default of other suggestions being adopted, of which we are by no means sure, we would direct attention to its admirable qualifications as the site of the new civil hospital, respecting which so many abortive proportions have been brought forward. We are well aware that His Excellency is anxious to see an institution to necessary and important well housed, and the recommendations put forth by competent modical authorities to remove that establishment to a better site and more commodious building than it now occupies have failed simply from the want of funds. But here we have a site already in Government possession and a building which, it would seem, could be altered at comparatively small cost to suit the requirements of a hospital. It is at least to be hoped that His Excellency will give the Legislative Council an opportunity of debating on the ultimate disposal of the Mint and its site, if it be only "for the look of the thing." He did not see fit to give that powerful body any official intimation of the dollar manufactory being definitely closed, and of its being in contemplation to effect a satisfactory sale of its machinery to the Japanese, while perpetrating a mild "sell" on the community; and His Excellency was certainly justified in

PARTIAL DEAFNESS.

There is probably no affliction to which iumanity is liable which excites so little sympathy as deafness. Every one helps the lame, and even criminals affect to respect the blind, but deafness too often wearies pity out. Unless it is total, and. therefore, accompanied by a partial failure of utterance, it does not strike those who have not felt it as an unendurable or even very painful misfortune, while it involves a tax upon all bystanders which to many organizations is exquisitely annoying. is positive suffering to many personsmuware that a slight compression of the larynx will double or treble the impact of their speech-to talk for any time to a deaf person, and they often fail in their own minds to distinguish between the physical defect and mental stupidity. Even where this feeling, is absent men in possession of their full senses often fail to recognize the immensity of the loss involved in even partial deafness, the enormous deduction it makes from the sufferer's powers of action. of acquisition, and of enjoyment. To realize those things fully it would seem necessary to be deaf, and as the writer happened recently to fall for a week or so into that condition, having been deaf just long enough to analyze his sensations without acerbity, he thinks his experience may be of some interest to readers of the

The deafness came on suddenly after a severe cold, was nearly complete in one ear, and though less complete in the other, was still sufficient to reduce the total power of hearing to an extent which seemed to himself incredible. The first sensation, unquestionably, was one of intellectual, or rather of nervous relief,-a feeing as if the nerves had suddenly become atronger, or life in some mysterious way lighter to bear. begin with, that roar of London, that ceaseless breaking of the waves of sound upon a shore of brass of which no Londoner ever ceases to be conscious, and which has of late years been increased at least one third by As for the King, he was heart broken, the gradual conversion of our streets into arched and resonant cylinders-listen for a moment in the New Road-died suddenly away, leaving a sense of comparative peace. tude which brings his best ear to the front, into the ugly gesture involved in placing the hand behind the ear, to make a sort of sounding-board for the speaker's voice to rebound against. In fact, the possibility of easy intercourse, of conversation facile as thinking, of chat in which no one is burdened, of society in which listening is pleasanter than speaking, disappears for him, and with is one-half the pleasure and charm of modern life. He is isolated from his kind with an isolation which has no compensating solitude, or additional power of self-communion. It is all pure loss, loss of power, loss of enjoyment, loss of ease, loss of opportunities and loss of exertion.

To some natures, we suspect deafness brings with it much active pain. People talking in a room can hardly help glaucing at the one man who does not hear, and he therefore, if sensitive, can hardly avoid the suspicion that he is himself the subject of conversation. An old lady told us once that it had cost her five years to overcome that idea, and assure herself that the glances which aunoyed her so much were really unconscious invitations to her to join the conversation, and were made timid only by the 10-Unmingled joys, here, to no man beinstant recollection that as she could not comply the invitation might give pain. To the timid, too, deafness must be a terrible aggravation of nervous suffering. We are hardly aware, until we have lost it, how much we rely on the sense of hearing to protect us from danger, how difficult it is, for example, to cross a London thorough fare in safety by the aid only of the eyes. how much sound aids us in avoiding crowd, a falling tile, a shutter rising out of the pavement. A street in London must, to a thoroughly deaf man, be a miserable place, as miserable as an opera house where he can catch no note below a certain pitch, and is bothered to death by the apparent dislocation of all sounds. What with the loss of enjoyment in melody, in society, in home intercourse, and in friendship, with with the slight sympathetic dulness of brain which we strongly suspect always accompaules a diminution of the faculty of hear ing, Heaven keep us, of all the minor miseries of life, from long-continued deafness!

From the Englishman (Calcutta) of June 8:-"The celebrated volumes of the French Abbé Hue on China, and Sir Rutherford Alcock's account of Japan are, ho doubt, works of a far higher class and more extensive scope than the one now before us; but for practical utility, tor all purposes of locomotion, trading and DIVIDEND of (8 per cent.) Eight residence in any of the places coming withper cent has been declared on the Net | in its compass, The Treaty Ports of China Premis contributed to the above Association and Japan, by Messrs Mayers, Dennys and King, far surpasses them. It is difficult to know under what class of books to place it, graphy, hygiene, Murray's Hand-book and Bradshaw's Guide, -all as complete and excellent in their own line as could be expected; and though, perhaps, the book will not prove attractive to students, it is calculated to give a more intimate knowledge of the towns it describes, aided by the excellent maps which accompany it-the work entirely of Chinese—than any of the Secretaries and Agents of this Associ- more elaborated works that have preceded * * * We trust we have said enough Marine Risks at current rates of premium, a show that for any one about to visit, or reside in either of the countries described. information, but many useful bints.

(N. C. Daily Asws, May 16.) A very interesting book has lately been Lublished, entitled "The Treaty Ports of Company for that year divided pro rata to China and Japan," to which it forms a complete guide, and regarding the history of which it gives interesting particulars. Maps of the various localities described are inserted, and an appendix shows the existing means of transport between Europe and America and these two countries. A work of the kind was much needed, to PHE Undersigned, gents for the above place within reach of the general pub-Company are prepared to grant Poli- lic information regarding the districts cies against FIRE, on BUILDINGS and in which they reside that had hitherto been concealed under the mysterious hieroglyphics of the Chinese language, or at best open only to sinologues. The modest hope expressed by the authors, that much will be found in the present book that is new and unknown to the general reader, is, we think, tully justified. * * * Hongkong able particular regarding them, from their history native and foreign, to particulars of the geological formation and botanical wealth of the neighbourhood. * * * Not the least interesting feature in the book under review, is the insight it affords us into the character of the population in diff. rent parts of this vast empire. * * * One to a sketch of the history and topographical, leatures of Formosa. The vicissitudes of its history, the peculiarities of its inhabitants, and the reputed mineral wealth of its hills afford ample subject for research; and, to a person of Mr Swinhoe's tastes, must have offered powerful attractions. From his "Notes on Formosa" are derived many of the particulars given in the work under review. * * * Interesting descriptions of the fanna and flora of the island are given, for details of which we refer our readers to the book itself. We have, we believe, said enough to show the scope and character of the work; and must take leave of it for the present, though with the intention of completing our sketch of the information it gives regarding the various treaty ports, on a future occasion. In the meantime, we can assure our readers that no one who takes the trouble to gain a more intimate knowledge of it, will regret the time employed. (Singapore Free Press, May 9.) We referred briefly, several days ago, to a new work published by Messrs. A. Shortrede & Co., of Hongkong, entitled "The Treaty Ports of China and Japan." But it would be utterly impossible, in a condensed notice of such a work, to give an adequate idea of its contents. The historical events of interest since the foundation of the settlement of Hongkong, are perhaps to o much condensed into a general summary; but the most important feature in the composition of the society of the present colony, is detailed at greater length. When we come to consider that the book before us makes no pretensions to be a history, but merely a guide book, we cannot hesitate to pronounce it at once the most complete work of its kind ever issued. The Appendix may be termed the China Bradshaw, and the text teems with interesting papers,-historical, botanical, and descriptive. The maps and plans are useful illustrations of the geographical position of the treaty ports, and a valuable assistance both to travellers and residents.

Shanghar Recorder May 7, and Supreme Court and Consular Gazette, May 11, 1867. A very useful book has just been issued from the Press in Hongkong under the title of the " Guide Book and Vade-mecum to the Treaty Ports of China and Japani" compiled and edited by Mr N. B. Dennys. The Book is very conveniently got up; is interspersed with maps of the various treaty ports, and contains, besides much useful local information, historical sketches of much interest. Our readers will feel naturally interested in what is said concerning Shanghai; and a good idea of the history of this place is conveyed in Mr Dennys' work. * * * The other ports THE Undersigned having been appointed in China and also those in Japan are Agents in Macao for the above named carefully described, and almost all par-Company are prepared to grant Policies ticulars which can be required by the covering Marine Risks at the current Rates, traveller or resident are to be found in the work, which may be justly regarded as the "Murray" for China,
